Finding Wonderland

Homeowner Caroline Lim's vivacious personality and sense of whimsy are reflected throughout her Singapore abode, following a dramatic makeover by Edmund Ng Architects.

In 2010, Caroline Lim purchased a penthouse in a modern residential tower in Singapore. Though Caroline had a clear vision for how she wanted to furnish her new home, she initially relied on a local interior designer to help her realize it. "I was a bit apprehensive about working with a designer because I wanted to make sure that my ideas were carried out," says Caroline. "I eventually found a designer who understood my style and vision, and I was very happy with the results." The designer helped Caroline create a space that reflects her personality and interests, including a collection of vintage cars and a passion for art. The result is a vibrant and eclectic interior that is both functional and aesthetically pleasing.

As a result, Caroline's home is a reflection of her personality and interests. She appreciates the blend of traditional and modern elements, and the way the space is designed to reflect her personal style. She also enjoys the fact that the space is functional and comfortable, yet still looks great. "I feel like I have found my 'home away from home,'" says Caroline. "It's a place where I can relax and enjoy myself, and where I can showcase my interests and passions."

Caroline's collection of vintage cars, including a classic Fiat 500, is a key element of her home. She loves the way they look and the way they make her feel. "I feel like I have found my 'home away from home,'" says Caroline. "It's a place where I can relax and enjoy myself, and where I can showcase my interests and passions."
